

Permission to Examine

Permission to examine

Permission to examine Special Collections material will be granted to qualified researchers upon completion of the application form, and agreement to abide by the following rules and policy governing the use of materials. Such permissions are granted subject to whatever restrictions may have been placed on the material by the donors or depositors.

Protection of the material

A researcher is responsible for the safeguarding of any materials made available to him/her in the Special Collections Room. Researchers may not remove materials from the Special Collections Room for any purpose or rearrange the order in which they are delivered. Only one (1) archival box may be used at a time. The use of any kind of pen is prohibited. Materials may not be leaned on, written on, folded, or handled in any way likely to damage them. In certain cases, researchers may be required to use digital images, microfilm, or printed copies of materials when such copies are available. Eating and smoking are prohibited in the Special Collections Room.

This is NOT permission to publish

Permission to examine materials is not an authorization to publish them or any copy of them. Except for personally created, that is typed or handwritten excerpts or notes (no photocopying or scanning), researcher agrees not to reproduce or copy the examined material, in whole or in part. A separate, written application for permission to publish must be made to the OSU Special Collections. In the absence of such written permission, researcher agrees not to publish the materials, in whole or in part, in any manner, including on the Internet. Researchers who plan eventual publication of their work should make inquiry concerning overall restrictions of publication before beginning their research. OSU may at its discretion choose to grant publication rights to applicants for non-commercial scholarly use, only. However, in granting permission to publish, OSU does not surrender its own right thereafter to publish any of the materials from its collection or grant others permission to publish them. If permission to publish is granted, appropriate credit for the cited material shall be indicated in the published work.* A free copy of all publications which rely heavily on the material in the OSU Special Collections (except dissertations) must be presented to Special Collections as soon as the work is published. OSU does not assume any responsibility for and expressly disclaims any liability for infringement of copyright or other rights in the material held by others.

Photoduplication

Photocopies or other reproductions of materials in the OSU Special Collections are provided as a service to expedite research and lessen wear on documents, and are made solely for the personal use of the individual researcher requesting them. Photocopies and other reproductions may not be transferred to another individual or organization, deposited at another institution, published in any form, in whole or in part (including posting on the Internet), or reduplicated, in whole or in part, without prior permission of the Valley Library and Oregon State University Special Collections.

PHOTODUPLICATION OR OTHER REPRODUCTION BY VALLEY LIBRARY SPECIAL COLLECTIONS IN NO WAY TRANSFERS EITHER COPYRIGHT OR PROPERTY RIGHT, NOR DOES IT CONSTITUTE PERMISSION TO PUBLISH, DISTRIBUTE, PERFORM OR TO DISPLAY MATERIALS.

In some cases, Special Collections may refuse to make copies because of the physical condition of the material, the amount of staff time required to do the work, special restrictions imposed by the donor, copyright law, or right-to-privacy statutes, or for any other reason. All photocopying is done by the Special Collections staff.

NOTICE: WARNING CONCERNING COPYRIGHT RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specific conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement. This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgement, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.

No exclusive rights

Exclusive rights to examine or publish material will not be granted.
